Alexander MacRae (1888 - 1938) was born in the Loch Carron/Loch Kishorn region, Ross Shire, Scotland in 1888. He migrated to Australia around 1912. In 1914 MacRae began manufacturing men's and women's woollen and cotton underwear and woollen knitwear in Sydney under the trade name "Fortitude" (a motto taken from the MacRae family crest). The business was originally known as MacRae and Company. It is first listed in Sands and McDougall at 40 Wentworth Ave and then at 283 Clarence St. In 1918 the business became known as MacRae Knitting Company and moved to 33 - 37 Regent St, Redfern. In 1922 it became a limited company and traded as MacRae Knitting Mills Ltd. At around this time it also moved to larger premises at 109 Parramatta Road, Camperdown. In 1926 the company moved again to a three floor factory in Federation Street, Newtown which it occupied until 1956.

In the early 1920s MacRae Knitting Mills came up with a revolutionary breakthrough in swim suit design with the creation of what became known as the "racer-back" style. The racer-back was figure-hugging and featured a high, narrow back panel which permitted freedom of the shoulder and back muscles and largely eliminated fabric drag. The company ran a staff competition in 1928 to name the costume and one of its employees, a former sea-captain, Captain Jim Parsons, won the five pounds prize with the winning slogan, "Speed on in your Speedo". For competitive swimming, a lightweight and strong silk swim suit was used, but because of the cost of silk, a cotton fabric was used for training sessions. Soon after its introduction the Swedish swimmer, Arne Borg, set a world swimming record wearing a Speedo swim suit. The famous Australian swimmer, Andrew (Boy) Charlton, also wore a Speedo swim suit. From that point onwards the company formed close relationships with both still water and salt water sports associations.

In 1937 MacRae Knitting Mills became a proprietary company. In the same year it was granted a licence from Coopers Inc. of Kenosha, Wisconsin, USA to produce and market "Jockey" underwear for men and boys. Jockey was the largest selling brand of underwear in the world. As a result of this business arrangement, MacRae Knitting Mills ceased production of its "Fortitude" brand of underwear.

Following the death of Alexander MacRae in 1938, his two eldest sons, Alasdair and Bill, became Joint Managing Directors.

From 1939 until 1945 the company turned almost all of its resources over to Australia's war effort, with 90% of production being for war purposes and the remaining 10% for essential civilian production. In 1942, because of the success of the Speedo brand, the company changed its name to Speedo Knitting Mills Pty Ltd.

After World War II the demand for Speedo swim suits including the two-piece and bikini styles necessitated the establishment of another factory at Windsor in 1947.

In 1948 Speedo became the official supplier of Australia's Olympic swimsuits for the first time. Other national swimming teams also wore Speedos at the Olympic Games: for example at the Munich Olympics in 1972, 52 out of 54 countries wore Speedo swimsuits.

In 1952 Speedo Knitting Mills (Holdings) Ltd was incorporated and became a public company listed on the Sydney and Melbourne stock exchanges. Its name was changed to Speedo Holdings Ltd in 1959.

An additional factory was established at Newcastle in 1952, controlled by a separate subsidiary company, Speedo Knitting Mills (Newcastle) Pty Ltd. In 1956 Speedo built a new administrative centre and factory at 239 Pacific Highway, Artarmon and the Newtown site was closed down. The "House of Speedo" at Artarmon was officially opened by the Governor of NSW, Lieutenant-General Sir John Northcott, on 21 February 1957. By this time Speedo was employing 700 people.

In the early 1950s the first skirtless version of the men's competitive swim suit was introduced and this led to the racing style brief. Australian swimmers performed brilliantly at the 1956 Melbourne Olympics wearing Speedo swim suits winning eight gold medals and this attracted world-wide attention. In 1957 Speedo developed a new competitive swim suit using nylon which had strength, elasticity, and repelled water which meant that it had fast drying properties.

In 1959 Speedo began exporting its products to the US and this development was accelerated after the Australian Government introduced its export initiative scheme. The previous year Speedo had entered into a licence arrangement scheme for skiwear with White Stag, part of the Warnaco Inc. group of companies from Portland, Oregon. After undertaking careful research of the US market, Speedo decided to enter into an agreement with Hirsch-Weiss, a division of Warnaco, for that company to be its American distributor, and at the same time Speedo established its own advertising and sales promotion organisation at Palo Alto in California. In 1968 Warnaco acquired 500,000 Speedo shares and became the largest shareholder in the company.

For the 1964 Tokyo Olympics Speedo designed a costume for the Australian team that featured a green and gold stripe. From 1965 prints were added to Speedo's product range and from then on swim wear became a fashion item, with prints and colours changing each season.

In 1968 new warehouse premises were completed and occupied in Artarmon; in 1970 the Windsor factory was enlarged; and in 1971 another factory was opened at Taree on the NSW mid-north coast. Artarmon was the main administrative centre and undertook fashion merchandise cutting and all knitting; Windsor was responsible for machining of all fashion wear; and Taree undertook the cutting and machining of underwear. In 1971 the group of companies trading as Country Club Holdings Ltd, shirt manufacturers, were acquired by Speedo which meant that Speedo now also produced a full range of men's business and sports shirts.

The company's overall operations were also restructured at this time. Australia was to focus on the Speedo, Country Club and Jockey brands; Speedo swimwear, previously exported to the US, was to be manufactured by Blue Grass Industries Inc. of Kentucky, with Hirsch-Weiss remaining as distributors; and the company purchased 30% of Robert Shaw and Co. Ltd of Nottingham (to 51% in 1972 and the balance of the ordinary capital of the company was acquired in 1974) and through Speedo (Europe) Ltd Robert Shaw became responsible for the manufacture and distribution of Speedo products in Western Europe. These developments, the company's export trade, and its numerous international licensing agreements - New Zealand was the first in 1963 - led to the formation of an International Division to coordinate activities. Speedo was such a successful exporter that it won export awards from the Department of Trade and Industry in 1964 and 1969. In 1974 Speedo Canada Inc. was established to undertake the administration, manufacture and promotion of Speedo products in Canada.

For the competitive swimming events at the 1972 Munich Olympics Speedo introduced a new elastomeric fibre known as lycra. Twenty one out of the 22 world swimming records broken at the Munich Olympics were achieved by swimmers wearing Speedos. However for all purpose swimwear, Nylon remained the most popular fabric.

In 1980 Speedo acquired the Gloria group of companies and also 44.9% of the equity in Formfit of Australia Ltd, the remaining balance of shares being acquired the following year. In this year it also acquired 50% stakes in Kentucky Textiles in the US and Carlton Place Textiles Ltd of Canada.

The period 1983 - 86 saw the consolidation of all the company activities both in Australian and overseas. In 1983 Hirsch-Weiss, became the full licensee for the manufacture, sale and distribution of Speedo products in the US; Botnick, a division of Warnaco, Canada assumed the same rights for Canada.

In 1986 AFP Corporation took over Speedo Australia and Speedo International and merged them into the Linter Group of Companies. The company's International Division was separated from the Australian manufacturing company for taxation purposes. The company's 50% stake in Kentucky Textiles was bought by the other 50% partner, Wayne Shumate, with Warnaco, owner of Hirsch-Weiss, being granted a perpetual licence. Speedo (Europe) Ltd of Nottingham was sold to Crowther Ltd and a perpetual licence was also granted.

In 1988 Abraham Goldberg, through Parkinson Holdings, acquired all of the Linter Group from AFP and merged it with his own textile group, Entrad, and privatised the whole of the textile and apparel companies under the umbrella group, Linter Textile Corporation.

In 1990 the British-based Pentland Group of Companies purchased Speedo after the Linter group went into receivership and the company became known as Speedo International Ltd and operated from headquarters in Nottingham. Throughout the 1990s and into the 21st century SPEEDO launched a number of innovative fabrics: S2000 was the world's first, fast swimwear fabric; Endurance swimwear used a fabric that did not degrade in water; Aquablade was developed for racing swimsuits; and the FASTSKIN swimsuit was based on a sharkskin design. A manufacturing and marketing arm was retained in Australia until 2001 when all manufacturing was transferred to Speedo International factories. The Speedo factory in Windsor was retained as a marketing and distribution point and refurbished as a major design centre for Speedo leisure wear.

Series Title: Scrapbooks

Date Range: 1954 - 1991

Physical Characteristics: Large scrapbooks usually consisting of brown kraft paper pages bound in cloth covered cardboard covers with cloth covered reinforced spines. Five of the scrapbooks comprise higher quality white paper.

Description: Scrapbooks, Speedo, Artarmon/Windsor, New South Wales, Australia, 1954 - 1991

29 scrapbooks maintained by Speedo's Advertising Department which consist primarily of clippings of items from Australian newspapers and magazines advertising Speedo manufactured products or garments or other products imported and sold by the company under various licence agreements. General articles on Speedo, its products, sponsorship arrangements and athletes who wore its products are also included. The scrapbooks are categorised by type of product advertised and most individual clippings have been pasted into the books in general date order. The source and date of each clipping is usually identified as is the cost that the company had to pay for each advertisement. However in most books clippings have also been inserted loosely without being pasted down. Some of the scrapbooks have either typed or hand written indexes and they provide the name of the store where the product was advertised and the relevant page/s within that particular scrapbook where the advertisement can be found. The scrapbooks also contain a great deal of related material such as media cost summaries provided by the company's advertising agencies, radio and television scripts, point-of-sale advertising display material, and photographs, for example of floor displays or the opening of the Speedo factory in Taree in 1971. Again a great deal of this material has been loosely inserted into the scrapbooks rather than attached. Three of the books - 2001/92/1-3/5, 2001/92/1-3/9 and 2001/92/1-3/13 - have a system where clippings begin at both ends of the book.

The scrapbooks provide a fascinating record of the various products manufactured or imported by Speedo over time, the changing styles in swimsuits and swimwear, beachwear, men's and women's wear etc and how these products were marketed and advertised to the Australian public.

Arrangement: By product or function, then chronological.

	Facsimile of a feature run within the "Sydney Morning Herald" of Tuesday 24 February 1957 p14 to celebrate the opening of the Speedo factory and offices at Pacific Highway, Artarmon, New South Wales, Australia. The top part of the feature shows a pen and ink drawing of the new Speedo premises as well as a pen and ink drawing of the artist's vision of the original two person - man and wife - operation begun by Alexander MacRae in c 1914. This section also includes a short overview of the history of the company plus a few words taken from both the speech made by the Governor of New South Wales, Lieutenant - General Sir John Northcott, at the opening ceremony and the dedication service conducted by the Reverend Gordon Powell on the same day. The second part is headed, "From U.S.A. World Headquarters of famous Jockey underwear Coopers Inc. congratulates Speedo on the opening of the new Artarmon factory, now manufacturing the world-famous Jockey brand underwear." There is an image of Coopers factory in Kenosha, Wisconsin, USA, overlaid with stars and stripes. Underneath this are images of Ralph Y Cooper, President, Coopers Inc. and A R Kneibler, Vice-President in charge of world-wide licensing, as well as messages from both men. In the bottom right hand corner there is an advertisement for Jockey underwear which reads, "Worn all over the world! The international favourite! Jockey brand underwear by Coopers. Manufactured in Australia at the new Speedo factory in Artarmon under exclusive licence from Coopers Inc., U.S.A." As part of this section there is a logo for Jockey brand underwear which features two black silhouette figures - one wearing a white singlet and briefs, the other a white T-shirt and thigh length underwear. The photograph is located on page eighteen of the album.

Description:	Magazines, 'The International Swimmer', Speedo, Artarmon, New South Wales, Australia/Wallacia (Sales) Pty Ltd, Dural, New South Wales, Australia, 1987 - 1989 'The International Swimmer' was published by Speedo from June 1964 until October 1988 after which the magazine was published by Wallacia (Sales) Pty Ltd of Dural, New South Wales, Australia. It ceased publication in June 1989. The issues of 'The International Swimmer' in this series consist of an incomplete run of the magazine towards the end of its existence. 'The International Swimmer' focussed on all aspects of elite aquatic sport with an emphasis on Australia. It provided reports on race swimming, diving and water polo, personality profiles, and news on Australian swimming, AUSSI [Australian Union of Senior Swimmers International] events, marathon swimming and synchronised swimming. It also had a coaching section, news about USA and Canadian swimming, and published results from swim meets in Australia and abroad. The magazine carried numerous advertisements for Speedo swimwear and associated products. In March 1988 the Managing Editor, Paul Moorfoot, included a circular letter with the January/February/March 1988 issue that announced that because of financial considerations the magazine would be published quarterly rather than bi-monthly. The July-October 1988 issue was the last published by Speedo although it continued to advertise in the magazine. This is an incomplete run of the latter period of publication of the magazine. The relevant bibliographic details are: Vol. 23 No. 6, January/February 1987 Vol. 24 No. 1, March/April 1987 Vol. 24 No. 3, July/August 1987 Vol. 24 No. 4, September/October 1987 Vol. 24 No. 5, November/December 1987 Vol. 25 No. 1, January/February/March 1988 [No volume number given] July - October 1988 Vol. 25 No. 4, December 1988 Vol. 26 No. 1, March 1989

Date Range: 1958 - c 1990

Physical Characteristics: Black and white prints; black and white negatives; colour prints; 35 mm colour slides; 35 mm colour slide film; transparencies; black and white press clippings; photostats; photocopies.

Description: Photographs, 'The International Swimmer' Photographs, Speedo, Artarmon, New South Wales, Australia, 1958 - c 1990

Photographic material collected and often used by the editor of the Speedo magazine, 'The International Swimmer', in the production of the magazine. Many of the images were purchased from Australian newspapers or international photographic agencies. Other images were supplied by the competitors themselves, family members or their coaches. The overall collection focuses primarily on pool swimming, diving and water polo. The photographs include some famous Australian swimming figures including Michael Wenden, Tracey Wickham, Des Renford, Don Talbot and Lisa Curry to name just a few.

The images were originally housed in manilla folders that were arranged alphabetically by name or subject. They have been transferred to archival housing but the original broad alphabetical order has been maintained as far as possible. All items contained in the original manilla folders have been retained but non photographic items such as the clippings, photocopies and photostats have not been described.

Arrangement: Broadly alphabetical.

2001/92/1-17/1	Video recording, VHS, `Speedo 1989', videotape/plastic, Broadcom Australia Ltd, Ultimo, New South Wales, Australia, 1988 The video contains Speedo's "Seabed" 60 second commercial showing a male athlete running along the seabed, a male speed skater skating along the seabed and a track cyclist cycling along the seabed. All are frustrated by their inability to make progress underwater. The cyclist is then overtaken by a female swimmer with long blonde hair wearing a red one-piece Speedo swimsuit who effortlessly glides through the water. The caption at the end of the advertisement reads, "Speedo cut to cut through water". There are two copies of the commercial on the videotape and the duration of the videotape is two minutes. The videotape is housed in a plastic case.	17
2001/92/1-17/2	Video recordings (2), VHS, `Speedo Sales Presenter', videotape/plastic, Broadcom Australia Ltd, Ultimo, New South Wales, Australia, 1989 Overview of Speedo's sponsorship of aquatic sports produced by Broadcom Australia Ltd. In the introduction the company describes itself as "The Great Aussie Cossie Company". There are short pieces of vision of a surf carnival, the swimming leg of the MMM triathlon, a relay swimming race, a diving competition, and a water polo match. The voice-over emphasises Speedo's role over many years as a part of Australia's aquatic sporting heritage. This is followed by more detail about the aquatic sports and events Speedo sponsored at the time: surf life saving, the iron man competition, the MMM triathlon, water polo, diving, synchronised swimming, surfing, swimming and the Archie Punch 50 yards international held at the City Tattersalls Club, Sydney, New South Wales, Australia. The video finishes with vision of a Speedo fashion parade held at Bondi Beach, Sydney. The duration of the videotape is 15 minutes 30 seconds. Both videotapes are housed in plastic cases.	17

Paul Sullivan talks about his background at the company and how fabrics are acquired and the stock control process; Crystal talks about her background and how fabrics are cut in the cutting room using patters and pins; Vicky O'Connell, a sample machinist, demonstrates how patterns are designed on the screen; and Carolyn explains how designs are marked up on the computer so that fabric is maximised. Paul Sullivan then talks about sewing machines used; machinists are shown sewing swimming costumes; Tracy, a flat locker, shows how her sewing machine works; and there are views of the largely deserted factory area, the rolls of fabric, the sewing machines, and the equipment such as brooms piled up. The video then shows views of the front entrance to the factory, the car park, street, neighbouring houses on the opposite side of the street, and sign on the front of the building. The final shot is of the Certificate of Registration of a Design issued to the company in 1923 for a bathing garment. The duration of the videotape is one hour, two minutes and 20 seconds. The videotape is housed in a plastic case.	17

Series Title: 'Speedo Swim News'

Date Range: 1956 - 1962

Physical Characteristics: Large printed sheets of paper (630 mm x 398 mm) produced and distributed by Speedo and designed to be displayed on swimming club notice boards.

Master set of 'Speedo Swim News' collected and maintained by Speedo administrative staff. Originally the sheets were folded and roughly punched into a four ringer binder with cardboard covers which was covered in light blue fabric with the words, "Speedo Knitting Mills Pty Ltd" in gold lettering on the front cover.

Description: Posters, 'Speedo Swim News' Notice Board Edition, Speedo, Artarmon, NSW, Australia, 1956 - 1962

Master set of 'Speedo Swim News' maintained by the company. 'Speedo Swim News' was a publication produced by Speedo which in the first issue was "described as a contribution towards Australian speed swimming and surfing." Further it was stated that 'Speedo Swim News' "will appear each month and be mailed gratis to every swim and surf club in Australia and to authorities throughout the world; will publish results and comments on the latest happenings in Australian and overseas swimming; will pass on the first-hand experience and knowledge of producing world rated swimmers by way of coaching and training hints." The notice board edition was printed on large sheets of paper in a two colour process with the illustrations, border and internal headings printed in a colour that changed each month. Issues were intended to be posted on club notice boards. The second issue was more overtly commercial than the first with the Speedo logo prominently displayed at the top and bottom and the words "SWIMWEAR - SHORTSHIRTS - KNITWEAR" at the bottom of the page. An illustration of a swimmer in swimming trunks stylistically swimming across the width of the page was also used for the first time in the second issue and was used thereafter.

From the 6th issue in January 1957 'Speedo Swim News' was designated as the official organ of the New South Wales Amateur Swimming Association (NSWASA). The names of senior NSWASA officials were included; the focus became pool swimming and Speedo's commercial presence was toned down. For most of its history 'Speedo Swim News' was edited by the renowned swimming coach, Frank Guthrie, but from the 36th issue the editor became John Devitt, a Speedo employee and Gold Medallist at the 1956 Melbourne and 1960 Rome Olympics. The 37th issue in 1961 introduced Jack Barnett, Australian Professional Diving Champion, who provided comments and advice on diving.

The issues missing are: 14th, 20th, 38th

Because of preservation concerns, the issues of 'Speedo Swim News' have been removed from the original binder. The original binder has been maintained separately.
